

The Romantics in Toronto

Toronto loves reading. The city borrows more digital books than any other library system worldwide. Data sourced from the Toronto Public Library reveals that 224,944 eBook checkouts were made in the month of June alone. While Torontonians living in the central wards of the city borrowed mainly Literature in June, those living out in the west and east sides of the city loved their Romance. The outliers were Scarborough-Agincourt where juvenile fiction was most popular and York South-Weston where they preferred their Romance with a dash of History.

“The Other Einstein: A Novel” was the must read book in most wards this June. With 176 holds for this eBook, it was decidedly the most popular eBook check out in Toronto. The novel centers around Einstein’s first wife, Mileva Marić. The story chronicles a brilliant physicist in her own right, whose contributions to the special theory of relativity were forgotten.

Mapping the number of digital check outs for each ward, we get an over-view of the eBook circulation in the month of June

